O1 Properties introduced new name for Lesnaya Plaza office centre

Moscow, Russia. September 3, 2014. Investment company O1 Properties, one of the largest owners of class A office real estate in Moscow, announces new name of Lesnaya Plaza office centre. Now the building will be known as White Stone. The new name reflects the vicinity of the office centre with the vibrant business district area formed by the White Square and White Gardens office centres, and points at the contemporaneity of the building's architecture and design.

Renaming of the office centre is part of the complex rebranding of the building. Thus at the beginning of 2014, the lobby was completely redesigned, the elevators were improved and the underground parking at the -2 level was completely renovated. The design concept was created by world-famous design bureau Aedas. The lobby was totally modified and became lighter and airy due to the light pastel natural materials used in the finishing. The reception desk with a rising wall made of light-colored stone has become a focal point of the lobby. The pivot space was divided into functional areas for leisure and waiting visitors. The large-scale project of renovation of the White Stone common areas was prized by the Best Office Awards judges for the best atrium.

Alexander Ostrovsky, CEO of O1 Properties: "We have made significant investments in the project of renovation of the White Stone office centre to bring it into line with the current requirements of the largest companies to their offices. The rebranding symbolizes a new stage in the building's life and a higher level of comfort and services offered to our tenants".
